

PRINCETON UNIVERSITY WAIVER OF LIABILITY

Princeton University has awarded research funding to me based upon the academic merit of my research proposal. However, I understand that by providing funding Princeton University has not been and will not be responsible for evaluating or taking steps to minimize any risks to me or my personal property that might be associated with my research, including any risks associated with travel to or residence in locations other than Princeton, New Jersey.

Therefore, as conditions of research funding and my acceptance thereof, I specifically acknowledge that:

1. In providing funding to me, Princeton University does not assume any obligation to me whatsoever;
2. It is my obligation (not the University's) to reasonably investigate and prepare for my research by (among other things) seeking informed answers to the questions critical for me to understand the nature of my research, the safest and most appropriate means of undertaking it (including related travel), and any potential risks entailed by my research;
3. In the event that I suffer personal injury or property damage in connection with my research, I will not seek to hold Princeton University liable for any such injury or damage in consequence of its provision of funding to me; and
4. If for any reason I am unable to use the funds for the proposed research project, I will inform the Program in Near Eastern Studies (NEP) to that effect immediately, and return to NEP the uncashed University check (preferred) or otherwise fully reimburse NEP for the award amount as soon as possible. I further understand and agree that until I do so, I remain personally responsible to the Program in Near Eastern Studies and to the University for the full amount of the original award.
