

PRINCETON CIVIC ENGAGEMENT LANDSCAPE

Pace Center
pace@
pace.princeton.edu/

The Pace Center is the campus advocate for civic engagement. Contact the Pace Center for help finding the right opportunity or for support with your civic engagement project.

Disclaimer: Student organization culture at Princeton is vibrant and dynamic. As a result, organizations are constantly changing, so keep in mind that contact information for the following groups might be outdated. Please use the Civic Engagement Landscape as a guide, not as an ultimate source of contacts.

Organizational Update Note:

As part of a continuing effort to make Princeton University a “center of excellence” for civic engagement and community service initiatives, Community House and the Student Volunteers Council joined the Pace Center on July 1. While each of these organizations will remain in its current location and continue to offer its own programming, the organizational change is intended to facilitate collaboration in support of their common goal of providing meaningful opportunities for every Princeton student to understand and take action on public problems.
