

CONTEMPORARY CHINA: A BOOK LIST

by Lubna Malik and Lynn White

Winter 2007-2008 Edition

This list is available on the web at:

<http://www.princeton.edu/~lynn/chinabib.pdf>

which can be viewed and printed with an Adobe Acrobat Reader.

Variation of font sizes may cause pagination to differ slightly in the web and paper editions.

No list of books can be totally up-to-date. Please surf to find further items.

Also consult <http://www.princeton.edu/~lynn/chinawebs.doc> for clickable URLs.

This list of items in English has several purposes:

- to help advise students' course essays, junior papers, policy workshops, and senior theses about contemporary China;
- to supplement the required reading lists of courses on "Chinese Development" and "Chinese Politics," for which students may find books to review in this list;
- to provide graduate students with a list that may suggest books for paper topics and may slightly help their study for exams in Chinese politics; a few of the compiler's favorite books are starred on the list, but not much should be made of this because such books may be old or the subjects may not meet present interests;
- to supplement a bibliography of all Asian serials in the Princeton Libraries that was compiled long ago by Frances Chen and Maureen Donovan; many of these are now available on the web, e.g., from "J-Stor";
- to suggest to book selectors in the Princeton libraries items that are suitable for acquisition; to provide a computerized list on which researchers can search for keywords of interests; and to provide a resource that many teachers at various other universities have also used.

This list is not copyrighted. The URL mentioned above may be freely included in on-line or printed course syllabi. Users should realize, however, that some good books (e.g., recent ones) may not yet be included in this edition. The bibliography is on the web as "freeware" for use and copying by anybody, but it is not amended at the speed of light. It is a list of references, not always of recommendations.

Students with research topics should meet the WWS librarians in Wallace and those in the Social Science Reference Center, Firestone. For materials in Chinese and other languages, see Martin Heijdra in Gest Library. Professional bibliographers are the most neglected major academic resource at Princeton. Visit them! This list cannot cover articles, but computer databases do -- and librarians know them. Use bibliographical search engines, of course.

The list offers some call numbers of the Princeton Library system (if in Gest, with an added "G"; or if in the Wilson School, with a "W"). Look inside the call numbers for publication years (for example, .1995 is abbreviated '95). Items lacking call numbers on this list are nonetheless usually on campus; some are presently being catalogued. Numbers are noted for many books mainly to facilitate browsing the shelves in Princeton's open stacks. Interlibrary Loan is another way to obtain items, for researchers who begin early enough.

Articles are not included, but some Web sites and relevant journals are listed below. Many book titles are shortened, but the titles' first words and first authors' names are correct. On-line databases offer full references.

Thanks goes to Nancy Hearst, whose acquisition lists from the Fairbank Center Library have been important in compiling this bibliography, as also for past help to Michael Agelasto, David Bachman, Cindy Chou, Valerie Cropper, George Hicks, Marlowe Hood, Hu Chun, Li Cheng, Connie So, Zheng Yongnian, and computer guru Cindy Parvesse. All users are asked to send additions and amendments to Lynn White (who is at 609-924-1665, or better, Lynn@princeton.edu). Please send notes on items that should appear here. Authors who do not see their books here should let Lynn know but should avoid taking umbrage, because this list is admittedly incomplete.

Subject classifications are shown below in a table of contents. Books that might be put under alternative categories nonetheless usually appear under just one. So explore the whole list for items relevant to your interest.
