This list of items in English has several purposes:

--to help advise students' course essays, junior papers, policy workshops, and senior theses about contemporary China;
--to supplement the required reading lists of the seminars WWS 576a/Pol. 536 on "Chinese Development" and Pol. 535 on "Chinese Politics," as well as the undergraduate lecture course, Pol. 362;
--to provide graduate students with a list that can help their study for comprehensive exams in Chinese politics; a few of the compiler's favorite books are starred on the list, but not too much should be made of this, because some such books may be too old for students' purposes or the subjects may not be central to present interests;
--to supplement a bibliography of all Asian serials in the Princeton Libraries that was compiled long ago by Frances Chen and Maureen Donovan.

Students with specific research topics should definitely meet Laird Klingler, who is WWS Librarian and the world's most constructive wizard. This list cannot cover articles, but computer databases can. Rosemary Little and Mary George at Firestone are also enormously helpful. Especially for materials in Chinese, so is Martin Heijdra in Gest Library (Palmer Hall; enter up the staircase near the "hyphen" with Jones Hall). Other local resources are at institutes run by Chen Yizi and Liu Binyan (for current numbers, ask at EAS, 8-4276). Professional bibliographers are the most neglected major academic resource at Princeton. Visit them. Introduce yourself to them early in any research project.

This list offers call numbers of the Princeton Library system (if in Gest Library, with an added "G"; or if in the Wilson School, with a "W"). Look inside the call numbers for publication years (for example, 1995 is abbreviated '95). When the call number does not include the year, it is sometimes offered after the title on this list. Items that lack call numbers on this list are nonetheless usually on campus; many are presently being catalogued. Call numbers are noted for many books mainly to facilitate browsing the shelves in Princeton's open stacks. Interlibrary Loan is another way to obtain items, for researchers who begin early enough.

Publishers and old dates are omitted to save costs, because this list is reproduced in many copies. Articles are not included; there is notably incomplete Web information and a list of relevant journals. Non-English works are too many to include; but students who read Chinese should consult Lynn and Gest Library's bibliographer, Martin Heijdra. Many book titles are shortened to reduce the number of pages in this list, but the titles' first words and the first authors' names should be correct. On-line databases offer full references. This edition of the bibliography may be on the Internet, although it will not be amended at the speed of light.

Grateful acknowledgement goes to Michael Agelasto, David Bachman, Nancy Hearst, George Hicks, Marlowe Hood, Hu Chun, Li Cheng, Connie So, David Spiro, Zheng Yongnian, and others for help with this list. All users are asked to send additions and amendments to Lynn White (who is at 609-258-2809, voicemail at 258-4839, or home at 924-1665; also Lwhite@princeton.edu). Please send notes on items that should appear here. Unless you do, please avoid offense at any items omitted. But not all books here are surely recommended.

Topics classified by the list are shown below in a table of contents. Books that could be put under alternative categories nonetheless usually appear under just one. So explore the whole list for items relevant to your interest.
