

CRNAP MORAL EPISTEMOLOGY WORKSHOP
Princeton University
201 Marx Hall
18-19 March 2013

Monday 18 March 2013

- 10:00-11:30    "Moral relativism explained"
                  Gilbert Harman (Princeton)
- 11:30-12:00    Refreshments
- 12:00-1:30     "Comparing values across moral theories"
                  Toby Ord (Oxford)
- 1:30-2:30      Lunch
- 2:30-4:00      "Ethics is hard! What follows?"
                  Elizabeth Harman (Princeton)
- 4:00-4:30      Refreshments
- 4:30-6:00      "Acting for the right reasons"
                  Alison Hills (Oxford)
- 6:00-late       Drinks and dinner

Tuesday 19 March 2013

- 10:00-11:30    "Equilibrium in ethics and epistemology"
                  Thomas Kelly and Sarah McGrath (Princeton)
- 11:30-12:00    Refreshments
- 12:00-1:30     "Rational decisions to hold moral beliefs"
                  Simon Rippon (Oxford)
- 1:30-2:30      Lunch
- 2:30-4:00      "What's the value of moral philosophy?"
                  Will MacAskill (Oxford)
- 4:00-4:30      Refreshments
- 4:30-6:00      "Uncertainty, disagreement, and the thing to do"
                  Nicholas Southwood (ANU)
- 6:00-late       Drinks and dinner

All sessions take place in 201 Marx Hall. The workshop is free and open to anyone who registers by Friday 8 March 2013. To register contact Brigid Sudnick <bsudnick@exchange.Princeton.EDU>. For further information contact Michael Smith <msmith@princeton.edu>.

Generous funding for the Cooperative Research Network in Analytic Philosophy (CRNAP) is provided by Princeton University through the University's Global Collaborative Network Fund, as administered by the Council for International Teaching and Research; by the University of Oxford; and by the Australian National University.