Contents

Chapter Page
1. Introduction 3
   Background 3

2. Risks: A Qualitative Discussion 9
   Technological Risk 9
   Market Risk 10
   Financial Risk 13

3. Industrial Organization 17
   Historical Overview 17
   Structural Change 19

4. Financing 27
   Overview 27
   Sources of Funds 29
   Financial Capacity 34

5. Program Alternatives 39
   Single Manufacturer 39
   Joint Venture 39
   Federal Government Involvement 42
   Conclusion 45

Bibliography 49

List of Tables
Table No. Page
1. Commercial Air Transport Deliveries: Product Variation and Program Overlap Among Manufacturers 18
2. Pattern of Diversification, Early 1960’s and Later 20
3. Manufacturers’ Reliance on Subcontractors: The Case of Boeing’s 767 and 7.57 Programs 21
5. Average Stock Beta Values by Industry, 1966-74 28
7. Net Income of Major Aerospace Companies 30
8. Net Profit After Taxes as a Percentage of Sales 31
9. Aerospace Firm Long-Term Debt Holdings 33
10. Total and Aerospace Balance of Trade 43
11. Exports of Civil Aircraft 44

List of Figures
Figure No. Page
1. Cumulative Cash Flow Curve for Commercial Air Transport Program 4
2. Typical Cash Flow Curves and Their Sensitivity to Uncertainty 13
3. Many Subcontractors and Suppliers Work on a Single Program: Some Major Subcontracts for the Boeing 757 22