Preceptorships

Bicentennial Preceptorships

Princeton University established in 1949 10 Bicentennial Preceptorships commemorating 10 early officers and graduates, for the purpose of encouraging the development of teaching capacity and scholarship at the assistant professor level. The preceptorships provide an annual fund for research expenses and a one-year leave of absence, during a three-year tenure, for the furtherance of the incumbent’s scholarship.

In the fall of 1949, sufficient funds, supplementing general salary funds, were set aside from contributions to finance the Bicentennial Preceptorships for an initial period of three years. These funds have been supplemented from time to time by additional contributions and by endowment gifts. In the spring of 1950, four preceptorships were permanently endowed with funds received in a bequest from the late Ferris Thompson, Class of 1888; subsequently six additional endowed preceptorships were created.

Princeton University shares with Columbia, Harvard, and Yale universities in a trust fund established in 1948 by Eugene Higgins, a Columbia University graduate, Class of 1882. In addition to seven Higgins Professorships in the sciences, the income supports research and education in the various divisions of the sciences and engineering.

The income from these two funds is administered by the Scientific Research and Higgins Fund Committee of the faculty.

University Research Fund.

The University makes regular allotments of funds for research programs in the humanities and social sciences. The money from this appropriation is dispensed by the University Committee on Research in the Humanities and Social Sciences, in the form of research grants to members of the faculty in the two divisions concerned. The funds may be expended to promote scholarly projects, to provide research assistance, and to facilitate publication of the results of scholarship in these areas.

Engineering Research Funds.

The income from several University endowments is available for research in the engineering sciences and is administered by the executive committee of the School of Engineering and Applied Science. These include the Helen Hayes Watson Fund, William B. Reed, Jr., Fund, Long Fund, and Hildebrant Research Fund. Part of the income from the Doty Fund is available for research in electrical and civil engineering.

The funds that have been listed are concerned primarily with research and graduate teaching as it ties in with research. Two other interdepartmental programs are concerned with research and with under-graduate programs of study, and administer their own research funds. These are the Council of the Humanities and the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs. Since much of their responsibility has to do with undergraduate teaching, their research programs and organization are described in the undergraduate catalogue.
