ANTONIS ANASTASOPOULOS
[ University of Crete ]

Thursday, May 3, 2018 | 4:30pm | 102 Jones Hall

Antonis Anastasopoulos is tenured Assistant Professor of Ottoman History at the Department of History and Archaeology of the University of Crete, and Collaborating Faculty Member of the Institute for Mediterranean Studies/FO.R.T.H. He studied History and Archaeology at the National and Kapodistrian University of Athens, and holds an M.Phil. and a Ph.D. degree from the University of Cambridge, Faculty of Oriental Studies. He is a member of the Governing Directorate of the International Committee for Pre-Ottoman and Ottoman Studies (CIÉPO), of the editorial board of the journal Turkish Historical Review, and of the advisory board of The Ottoman Empire and its Heritage: Politics, Society and Economy series, published by Brill. He has edited or co-edited five volumes and has published more than 30 articles in academic journals, encyclopedias and collective volumes. His main research interests concern the Ottoman provinces with an emphasis on political relations in the eighteenth century, the Islamic tombstones of the Ottoman period, and the history of water management.