ENVIRONMENTAL TRANSLATIONS: EXPERIMENTS IN WRITING SPACE, ENVIRONMENT, AND TIME

DAVID GISSEN

David Gissen is the author of books, essays, exhibitions and experimental writings and projects about environments, landscapes, cities, and buildings from our time and the historical past. He is a professor at the California College of the Arts, San Francisco and Visiting Professor at Columbia University, Graduate School of Architecture, Planning and Preservation.

This talk presents a series of recent writing experiments that explore relations between writing, space and temporality, but that operate outside the formats of history, theory and criticism. These “environmental translations” draw from writing experiment precedents within architecture, conceptual literature, as well as studies from the sciences of perception.

Wednesday, March 8, 12:00 - 1:20 PM in Prospect Library

Co-sponsored by the Humanities Council and the Princeton-Mellon Initiative in Architecture, Urbanism, and the Humanities

LUNCH WILL BE PROVIDED. PLEASE RSVP TO jp16@princeton.edu