

Contents

1 Summary and Overview 1

- Global Integration Now Impacts the United States 2
- Agricultural Programs No Longer Reflect Market Realities 3
- Environmental Programs Do Not Emphasize New Priorities 7
- Expanded Trade Can Complement Environmental Protection 10
- Agricultural Research Needs a New Direction 12
- The View from Abroad 14
- A New Context for Policy 15

2 The U.S. Agricultural System and Global Markets 17

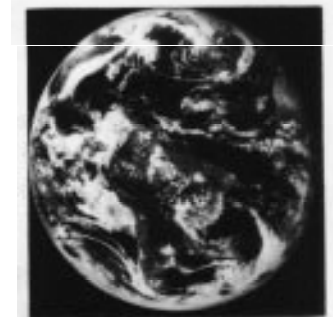

- The Agricultural Production System 18
- Technology and Management Practices 24
- Domestic Marketing Trends 33
- Global Marketing Trends 37
- The U.S. Dilemma 42
- Research and Development 42
- Chapter 2 References 43

3 Global Markets and International Trade Agreements 47

- Global Markets and U.S. Participation 46
- International Trade Policy and U.S. Agriculture 51
- Evolution of Export Promotion Programs 53
- Impact of Export Promotion Programs 55
- International Trade Agreements 56
- Terms of the New Trade Agreements 66
- Implications of GATT and NAFTA 62
- Trade Agreements and Domestic Programs 66
- Chapter 3 References 66

4 Agriculture's Broadening Environmental Priorities 69

- Agriculture and Environmental Quality 71
- Federal Conservation and Environmental Programs 89
- Chapter 4 References 104

Chapter 4 Appendices

- 4-1 National Primary Drinking Water Standards 111
- 4-2 Listing of Federal Conservation and Environmental Programs Related to Agriculture 113
- 4-3 USDA Conservation Expenditures, by Activity and Program, Fiscal Years 1983-1995 115

5 Expanding Agricultural Trade and the Environment: Complementary or Conflicting? 119

- Effects of Environmental Programs on Trade Competitiveness 122
- Trade and Environmental Effects of Product Standards 125
- Domestic Environmental Effects of Agricultural Trade Liberalization and Expansion 130
- Trade Measures To Achieve International Environmental Objectives 137
- Appendix I: Potential Environmental Effects of Commodity Program Reform and Trade Liberalization 144
- Appendix II: Processes and Production Methods 149
- Chapter 5 References 150

6 International Comparison of Agriculture, Trade, and Environmental Policies 157

- Trends in Agricultural Support and Trade Policies 161
- Environmental Provisions in Agricultural Policy 174
- Chapter 6 References 191

7 Opportunities for Redesigning Policies for Agriculture, Trade, and the Environment 197

- Policy Options for Agriculture and Trade 198
- Policy Options for Agriculture and the Environment 210
- Policy Options for Agricultural Trade and the Environment 221
- Epilogue 227
- Chapter 7 References 227

WORK GROUP, REVIEWERS, AND ACKNOWLEDGMENTS 229

INDEX 233